(d) and (e) No such proposal in respect of such posts is under consideration

Re-orientation of Indian Bureaucracy

4580. SHRI SAHID SIDDIQUI. Will the PRIME MINISTER be pleased to state:

(a) what steps are being taken for the re-orientation of Indian bureaucracy especially the IAS and IPS officers;

(b) whether there have been many reports of higher officers not showing a secular and unbiased outlook on many occasions especially during communal riots, and

(c) what steps are being taken to give more secular outlook to the central services officers and to make the more sensitive towards various social and religious groups?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF PERSONNEL, PUBLIC GRIEVANCES AND PENSIONS (SHRI SURESH PACHOURI): (a)Orientation and re-orientation of civil servants is a continuous process achieved through intensive induction training and supplemented by periodic mid-career trainings. A set of conduct rules is also in place to guide their actions as civil servants

(b) No case of this nature has been referred to the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions so far.

(c) During their training at the Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration and Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel National Police Academy IAS and IPS officers are enabled to develop a secular outlook and sensitivity as regards disadvantaged social groups. The Conduct Rules
